

RACELAND BEATS FIRENLI.

A GREAT RACE FOR THE GRAND NATIONAL.

FIRENLI RUNS SUPERBLY, BUT THE WEIGHT

IS TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

The American Jockey Club closed its autumn meeting yesterday with seven varied, interesting and exciting races. It was also the close of the racing season in this part of the country, a season which has been characterized by sensational, which has had many attractive features, but which has been plentiful also in its number of disappointments, mishaps and misadventures. The crowd which went out to the course yesterday seriously overtaxed the railroad facilities provided for it, and the trains were most uncomfortably crowded both ways. If the American Jockey Club could induce one of the electric railroads to run its line to Jerome Park, and would put in the stand men of the electric railroads, it would instantly become the most profitable and prosperous piece of racing property in America. But it is sadly handicapped now by the slow, smoky, dirty, disagreeable and unpleasant route by which it is reached. It has also been seriously handicapped this year by the lack of youthful vigor, youthful alertness, youthful force and youthful determination in the jockeys' stand. Every member of the club and all racing men acknowledge the fact that the American Jockey Club has been the best of the best in the world, and that it is a liberal and generous, anxious to promote only the true interests of the turf. Every one knows, too, that Mr. Duor, who practically controls the Jerome Park property, is sincerely desirous of securing racing of the best and fairest sort. He wants the sport carried on in such a way that it shall please and attract the most influential and the most respected elements in social life. Mr. Hunter and Mr. Duor have been endeavoring to secure these results, but they have been the mistake of putting in the jockeys' stand gentlemen whose intentions are faultless and whose characters are stainless, but who lack the boldness, the judicial sternness and severity necessary to checkmate and defeat the schemes of the swindlers who now in great numbers infest the American turf. The jockeys' stand has been the weakest spot in every way at the autumn meeting of the American Jockey Club. Unless men are put there next year, who will investigate unsparingly all suspicious betting, who will investigate all suspicious riding, Jerome Park cannot retain its popularity or be a successful racetrack.

The racing of yesterday was full of stirring incidents and also of unexpected results. The bookmakers reaped one of their richest harvests this year, for of the seven favorites only two got home first. In the first race Little Minch led in the betting, but came in second, while the favorite, Little Minch, came in third, and Lewis Stuart's Tristram led in the betting, but came in second, while the favorite, Little Minch, came in third, and Lewis Stuart's Tristram led in the betting, but came in second, while the favorite, Little Minch, came in third.

After Diabolo's excellent form of late,

he was, of course, made the favorite for the Kentucky Handicap for two-year-olds, and it was hard to get better than even money against him.

THE GIANTS TAKE IT EASY.

INDIANAPOLIS THEREFORE WINS.

SAVING THEMSELVES FOR THE WORLD'S CHAM-

PIONSHIP SERIES.

The regular League season at the Polo Grounds was brought to an end yesterday by an initiation baseball game between the New-York and Indianapolis clubs. Owing to the rain and the uncertainty of a game being played, the attendance was light. Keefe pitched for the home club, but was apparently afraid of the Giants.

The fifth, sixth and seventh races were not of much interest. A large field ran in the eighth race, and the favorite, Little Minch, was beaten by a colt named Little Minch. The favorite, Little Minch, was beaten by a colt named Little Minch.

The visiting players added one more run to their score in the second inning on a hit and steal by Mc-

Geachy, a sacrifice by Schenck and a force hit by Buckley. The score was a tie. A two-basis hit by Denny and a wild throw by Brown gave them the run. In the sixth inning errors by Whitney and O'Rourke, a stolen base and Schenck's cut at first base gave the Giants two runs and the lead. In the eighth inning hits by Glasscock and McGeachy and an error by Brown gave the visiting players another run. An error by Denny and a hit by Foster gave

New-York a run in the ninth and the game was over.
